

02-277

WFIE's corporate owner is seeking part interest in rival WTVW station

By CAROL WERSICH

Courier & Press staff writer
464-7452 or cwersich@evansville.net

Liberty Corp., owner of one television station in Evansville, seems confident it can be part owner of another local station, despite federal rules that limit such arrangements.

Liberty, the current owner of 14WFIE-NBC, also is an investor in GNS, a company that's attempting to buy WTVW-FOX7.

Hayne Hipp, Liberty's chief executive officer, said he believes the chances are good the sale will be approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

He and former Liberty executive Neil Smith, founder of GNS, have acknowledged the Greenville, S.C.-based Liberty is an initial investor in GNS, but they have declined to reveal the amount of Liberty's investment.

Documents filed with the

INSIDE

Neil Smith, whose new Evansville-based company is trying to buy WTVW-FOX7, hasn't always been in the broadcast industry. See report on Page B7

FCC indicated Liberty will hold about 30 percent of GNS stock, and not more than 33 percent.

Part of a new FCC rule, issued in early June, allows a

See LIBERTY on Page A10

ONLINE: www.courierpress.com

Confirmed

JUN 7 & 2003

Distribution Center

LIBERTY

Continued from Page A1

company to own two TV stations in the same market — if the market has a minimum of five commercial and noncommercial stations, according to Margo Davenport, a senior legal adviser with the FCC.

The Evansville market appears to fit those guidelines. The area currently includes six local broadcast stations — WEVV-CBS44, WEHT-ABC25, WAZE-WB19, WNIN-PBS9, WTVW-FOX7 and 14WFIE-NBC.

But the sale appears to miss the mark where another aspect of the new FCC rule is concerned. Davenport said the rule clearly states that only one of the two stations owned by the same company can be among the market's top four in the latest ACNielsen ratings, Davenport said.

Both WTVW and WFIE currently are among the top four in the just-published May 2003 ratings, which reflect household-rating shares and total homes, according to Ken Schreiber of Kitch & Schreiber Inc.

In the latest ratings, WFIE ranks No. 1, WEHT ranks No. 2, WTVW ranks No. 3, WEVV ranks No. 4, WAZE ranks No. 5, and WNIN ranks No. 6.

Hipp called FCC's rules complex. But, he said, he believes the federal agency will approve the sale when it considers the structure of Liberty's financial commitment to GNS and Smith's ability to manage and operate a station.

Hipp said he believes Smith's record of accomplishments in financial matters, in management and in being able to plan for both the short term and the long term is also a positive for him in the FCC's thorough review of the proposed sale.

"We should know in the next couple of months," Hipp said.

Quorum Broadcasting Co., based in Franklin, Tenn., is the current owner of WTVW.

Although the FCC rules have been relaxed, it's still unclear exactly how Liberty's relationship with GNS will impact the operation of WFIE and WTVW.

There's been speculation in the local television industry that the local stations might consolidate their news and advertising efforts after the sale for economic reasons.

Such a consolidation, called a local marketing agreement, wouldn't require as many news reporters and sellers of air time to advertisers.

Hipp said, "That would be Neil's decision," but Smith said nothing has been decided in that regard.

Smith said the FCC rules allow Liberty to contract with GNS/WTVW for "up to 15 percent of the programming."

He said if any changes are made they likely would be on the administrative side rather than in the news and sales operations, however.

"I'm a firm believer in having separate sales staffs," said Smith. "It's hard for one station to try to sell (advertising for) another station. Everyone always thinks their product is the best and the other one is thrown in for free."

"The last thing I'd want to do is reduce the sales value of WTVW. In the long-term, I will want what will be best for the market of WTVW. I'm looking for any opportunity to improve the situation for GNS."

Smith described WFIE as "a super operation with a good history," and he said he doesn't want to interfere with its operations.

"They have just signed an agreement on an option," he said.

"With the way I'm setting up my company I'm trying to find any kind of a niche which I can do anything with. Something might work out between the companies down the road."

His most urgent task, he said

recently, is to finish formulating his plans so he can present them to the WTVW staff.

Smith said he believes WTVW is doing a super job. "Otherwise I wouldn't be interested in the facility," he said.

"The station's news team is its meat and potatoes."

Smith said there would be no reason for him to buy WTVW and destroy what its done with its news product.

The proposed sales contract would require all WTVW employees to be basically terminated by Quorum on the day of the sale. They will be able to reapply for their jobs with GNS, he said.

"I'm going to try to keep as many people as possible," Smith said.

121611 Journal of Management Education, 19(8), 790-800, 1995.

WFIE's corporate owner is seeking part interest in rival WTVW station

By CAROL WERSICH

Courier & Press staff writer
464-7452 or cwersich@evansville.net

Liberty Corp., owner of one television station in Evansville, seems confident it can be part owner of another local station, despite federal rules that limit such arrangements.

Liberty, the current owner of 14WFIE-NBC, also is an investor in GNS, a company that's attempting to buy WTVW-FOX7.

Hayne Hipp, Liberty's chief executive officer, said he believes the chances are good the sale will be approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

He and former Liberty executive Neil Smith, founder of GNS, have acknowledged the Greenville, S.C.-based Liberty is an initial investor in GNS, but they have declined to reveal the amount of Liberty's investment.

Documents filed with the

INSIDE

Neil Smith, whose new Evansville-based company is trying to buy WTVW-FOX7, hasn't always been in the broadcast industry. See report on Page B7.

FCC indicated Liberty will hold about 30 percent of GNS stock, and not more than 33 percent.

Part of a new FCC rule, issued in early June, allows a

See LIBERTY on Page A10

ONLINE: www.courierpress.com

Continued
JUN 2 5 2003
Distribution Center

02-277

SUNSHINE PERIOD

LIBERTY

Continued from Page A1
company to own two TV stations in the same market — if the market has a minimum of five commercial and noncommercial stations, according to Margo Davenport, a senior legal adviser with the FCC.

The Evansville market appears to fit those guidelines. The area currently includes six local broadcast stations — WEVV-CBS44, WEHT-ABC25, WAZE-WB19, WNIN-PBS9, WTVW-FOX7 and 14WFIE-NBC.

But the sale appears to miss the mark where another aspect of the new FCC rule is concerned. Davenport said the rule clearly states that only one of the two stations owned by the same company can be among the market's top four in the latest ACNielsen ratings, Davenport said.

Both WTVW and WFIE currently are among the top four in the just-published May 2003 ratings, which reflect household-rating shares and total homes, according to Ken Schreiber of Kitch & Schreiber Inc.

In the latest ratings, WFIE ranks No. 1, WEHT ranks No. 2, WTVW ranks No. 3, WEVV ranks No. 4, WAZE ranks No. 5, and WNIN ranks No. 6.

Hipp called FCC's rules complex. But, he said, he believes the federal agency will approve the sale when it considers the structure of Liberty's financial commitment to GNS and Smith's ability to manage and operate a station.

Hipp said he believes Smith's record of accomplishments in financial matters, in management and in being able to plan for both the short term and the long term is also a positive for him in the FCC's thorough review of the proposed sale.

"We should know in the next couple of months," Hipp said.

Quorum Broadcasting Co., based in Franklin, Tenn., is the current owner of WTVW.

Although the FCC rules have been relaxed, it's still unclear exactly how Liberty's relationship with GNS will impact the operation of WFIE and WTVW.

There's been speculation in the local television industry that the local stations might consolidate their news and advertising efforts after the sale for economic reasons.

Such a consolidation, called a local marketing agreement, wouldn't require as many news reporters and sellers of air time to advertisers.

Hipp said, "That would be Neil's decision," but Smith said nothing has been decided in that regard.

Smith said the FCC rules allow Liberty to contract with GNS/WTVW for "up to 15 percent of the programming."

He said if any changes are made they likely would be on the administrative side rather than in the news and sales operations, however.

"I'm a firm believer in having separate sales staffs," said Smith. "It's hard for one station to try to sell (advertising for) another station. Everyone always thinks their product is the best and the other one is thrown in for free."

"The last thing I'd want to do is reduce the sales value of WTVW. In the long-term, I will want what will be best for the market of WTVW. I'm looking for any opportunity to improve the situation for GNS."

Smith described WFIE as "a super operation with a good history," and he said he doesn't want to interfere with its operations.

"They have just signed an agreement on an option," he said.

"With the way I'm setting up my company I'm trying to find any kind of a niche which I can do anything with. Something might work out between the companies down the road."

His most urgent task, he said

recently, is to finish formulating his plans so he can present them to the WTVW staff.

Smith said he believes WTVW is doing a super job. "Otherwise I wouldn't be interested in the facility," he said.

"The station's news team is its meat and potatoes."

Smith said there would be no reason for him to buy WTVW and destroy what it's done with its news product.

The proposed sales contract would require all WTVW employees to be basically terminated by Quorum on the day of the sale. They will be able to reapply for their jobs with GNS, he said.

"I'm going to try to keep as many people as possible," Smith said.

Mr Michael Copps
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

|||||

2

02-277

WFIE's corporate owner is seeking part interest in rival WTVW station

By CAROL WERSICH

Courier & Press staff writer
464-7452 or cwersich@evansville.net

Liberty Corp., owner of one television station in Evansville, seems confident it can be part owner of another local station, despite federal rules that limit such arrangements.

Liberty, the current owner of 14WFIE-NBC, also is an investor in GNS, a company that's attempting to buy WTVW-FOX7.

Hayne Hipp, Liberty's chief executive officer, said he believes the chances are good the sale will be approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

He and former Liberty executive Neil Smith, founder of GNS, have acknowledged the Greenville, S.C.-based Liberty is an initial investor in GNS, but they have declined to reveal the amount of Liberty's investment.

Documents filed with the

INSIDE

Neil Smith, whose new Evansville-based company is trying to buy WTVW-FOX7, hasn't always been in the broadcast industry. See report on Page B7.

FCC indicated Liberty will hold about 30 percent of GNS stock, and not more than 33 percent.

Part of a new FCC rule, issued in early June, allows a

See LIBERTY on Page A10

ONLINE: www.courierpress.com

Cont.

JUN 2

Distribution Center

LIBERTY

Continued from Page A1
company to own two TV stations in the same market — if the market has a minimum of five commercial and noncommercial stations, according to Margo Davenport, a senior legal adviser with the FCC.

The Evansville market appears to fit those guidelines. The area currently includes six local broadcast stations — WEVV-CBS44, WEHT-ABC25, WAZE-WB19, WNIN-PBS9, WTVW-FOX7 and 14WFIE-NBC.

But the sale appears to miss the mark where another aspect of the new FCC rule is concerned. Davenport said the rule clearly states that only one of the two stations owned by the same company can be among the market's top four in the latest ACNielsen ratings, Davenport said.

Both WTVW and WFIE currently are among the top four in the just-published May 2003 ratings, which reflect household-rating shares and total homes, according to Ken Schreiber of Kitch & Schreiber Inc.

In the latest ratings, WFIE ranks No. 1, WEHT ranks No. 2, WTVW ranks No. 3, WEVV ranks No. 4, WAZE ranks No. 5, and WNIN ranks No. 6.

Hipp called FCC's rules complex. But, he said, he believes the federal agency will approve the sale when it considers the structure of Liberty's financial commitment to GNS and Smith's ability to manage and operate a station.

Hipp said he believes Smith's record of accomplishments in financial matters, in management and in being able to plan for both the short term and the long term is also a positive for him in the FCC's thorough review of the proposed sale.

"We should know in the next couple of months," Hipp said.

Quorum Broadcasting Co., based in Franklin, Tenn., is the current owner of WTVW.

Although the FCC rules have been relaxed, it's still unclear exactly how Liberty's relationship with GNS will impact the operation of WFIE and WTVW.

There's been speculation in the local television industry that the local stations might consolidate their news and advertising efforts after the sale for economic reasons.

Such a consolidation, called a local marketing agreement, wouldn't require as many news reporters and sellers of air time to advertisers.

Hipp said, "That would be Neil's decision," but Smith said nothing has been decided in that regard.

Smith said the FCC rules allow Liberty to contract with GNS/WTVW for "up to 15 percent of the programming."

He said if any changes are made they likely would be on the administrative side rather than in the news and sales operations, however.

"I'm a firm believer in having separate sales staffs," said Smith. "It's hard for one station to try to sell (advertising for) another station. Everyone always thinks their product is the best and the other one is thrown in for free."

"The last thing I'd want to do is reduce the sales value of WTVW. In the long-term, I will want what will be best for the market of WTVW. I'm looking for any opportunity to improve the situation for GNS."

Smith described WFIE as "a super operation with a good history," and he said he doesn't want to interfere with its operations.

"They have just signed an agreement on an option," he said.

"With the way I'm setting up my company I'm trying to find any kind of a niche which I can do anything with. Something might work out between the companies down the road."

His most urgent task, he said

recently, is to finish formulating his plans so he can present them to the WTVW staff.

Smith said he believes WTVW is doing a super job. "Otherwise I wouldn't be interested in the facility," he said.

"The station's news team is its meat and potatoes."

Smith said there would be no reason for him to buy WTVW and destroy what its done with its news product.

The proposed sales contract would require all WTVW employees to be basically terminated by Quorum on the day of the sale. They will be able to reapply for their jobs with GNS, he said.

"I'm going to try to keep as many people as possible," Smith said.

XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX

WFIE's corporate owner is seeking part interest in rival WTVW station

By CAROL WERSICH

Courier & Press staff writer
464-7452 or cwersich@evansville.net

Liberty Corp., owner of one television station in Evansville, seems confident it can be part owner of another local station, despite federal rules that limit such arrangements.

Liberty, the current owner of 14WFIE-NBC, also is an investor in GNS, a company that's attempting to buy WTVW-FOX7.

Hayne Hipp, Liberty's chief executive officer, said he believes the chances are good the sale will be approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

He and former Liberty executive Neil Smith, founder of GNS, have acknowledged the Greenville, S.C.-based Liberty is an initial investor in GNS, but they have declined to reveal the amount of Liberty's investment.

Documents filed with the

INSIDE

Neil Smith, whose new Evansville-based company is trying to buy WTVW-FOX7, hasn't always been in the broadcast industry. See report on Page B7.

FCC indicated Liberty will hold about 30 percent of GNS stock, and not more than 33 percent.

Part of a new FCC rule, issued in early June, allows a

See LIBERTY on Page A10

ONLINE: www.courierpress.com

SUNSHINE PERIOD

02.277

Confirmed

JUN 2 2 2003

Distribution Center

LIBERTY

Continued from Page A1
company to own two TV stations in the same market — if the market has a minimum of five commercial and noncommercial stations, according to Margo Davenport, a senior legal adviser with the FCC.

The Evansville market appears to fit those guidelines. The area currently includes six local broadcast stations — WEVV-CBS44, WEHT-ABC25, WAZE-WB19, WNIN-PBS9, WTVW-FOX7 and 14WFIE-NBC.

But the sale appears to miss the mark where another aspect of the new FCC rule is concerned. Davenport said the rule clearly states that only one of the two stations owned by the same company can be among the market's top four in the latest ACNielsen ratings, Davenport said.

Both WTVW and WFIE currently are among the top four in the just-published May 2003 ratings, which reflect household-rating shares and total homes, according to Ken Schreiber of Kitch & Schreiber Inc.

In the latest ratings, WFIE ranks No. 1, WEHT ranks No. 2, WTVW ranks No. 3, WEVV ranks No. 4, WAZE ranks No. 5, and WNIN ranks No. 6.

Hipp called FCC's rules complex. But, he said, he believes the federal agency will approve the sale when it considers the structure of Liberty's financial commitment to GNS and Smith's ability to manage and operate a station.

Hipp said he believes Smith's record of accomplishments in financial matters, in management and in being able to plan for both the short term and the long term is also a positive for him in the FCC's thorough review of the proposed sale.

"We should know in the next couple of months," Hipp said.

Quorum Broadcasting Co., based in Franklin, Tenn., is the current owner of WTVW.

Although the FCC rules have been relaxed, it's still unclear exactly how Liberty's relationship with GNS will impact the operation of WFIE and WTVW.

There's been speculation in the local television industry that the local stations might consolidate their news and advertising efforts after the sale for economic reasons.

Such a consolidation, called a local marketing agreement, wouldn't require as many news reporters and sellers of air time to advertisers.

Hipp said, "That would be Neil's decision," but Smith said nothing has been decided in that regard.

Smith said the FCC rules allow Liberty to contract with GNS/WTVW for "up to 15 percent of the programming."

He said if any changes are made they likely would be on the administrative side rather than in the news and sales operations, however.

"I'm a firm believer in having separate sales staffs," said Smith. "It's hard for one station to try to sell (advertising for) another station. Everyone always thinks their product is the best and the other one is thrown in for free."

"The last thing I'd want to do is reduce the sales value of WTVW. In the long-term, I will want what will be best for the market of WTVW. I'm looking for any opportunity to improve the situation for GNS."

Smith described WFIE as "a super operation with a good history," and he said he doesn't want to interfere with its operations.

"They have just signed an agreement on an option," he said.

"With the way I'm setting up my company I'm trying to find any kind of a niche which I can do anything with. Something might work out between the companies down the road."

His most urgent task, he said

recently, is to finish formulating his plans so he can present them to the WTVW staff.

Smith said he believes WTVW is doing a super job. "Otherwise I wouldn't be interested in the facility," he said.

"The station's news team is its meat and potatoes."

Smith said there would be no reason for him to buy WTVW and destroy what it's done with its news product.

The proposed sales contract would require all WTVW employees to be basically terminated by Quorum on the day of the sale. They will be able to reapply for their jobs with GNS, he said.

"I'm going to try to keep as many people as possible," Smith said.

Ms. Kathleen Abernathy
Federal Communications Commission
455 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

4

WFIE's corporate owner is seeking part interest in rival WTVW station

By CAROL WERSICH

Courier & Press staff writer
464-7452 or cwersich@evansville.net

Liberty Corp., owner of one television station in Evansville, seems confident it can be part owner of another local station, despite federal rules that limit such arrangements.

Liberty, the current owner of 14WFIE-NBC, also is an investor in GNS, a company that's attempting to buy WTVW-FOX7.

Hayne Hipp, Liberty's chief executive officer, said he believes the chances are good the sale will be approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

He and former Liberty executive Neil Smith, founder of GNS, have acknowledged the Greenville, S.C.-based Liberty is an initial investor in GNS, but they have declined to reveal the amount of Liberty's investment.

Documents filed with the

INSIDE

Neil Smith, whose new Evansville-based company is trying to buy WTVW-FOX7, hasn't always been in the broadcast industry. See report on Page B7

FCC indicated Liberty will hold about 30 percent of GNS stock, and not more than 33 percent

Part of a new FCC rule, issued in early June, allows a

See LIBERTY on Page A10

ONLINE: www.courierpress.com

SUNSHINE PERIOD

62.277

Confirmed
JUN 2 5 2003
Distribution Center

LIBERTY

Continued from Page A1

company to own two TV stations in the same market — if the market has a minimum of five commercial and noncommercial stations, according to Margo Davenport, a senior legal adviser with the FCC.

The Evansville market appears to fit those guidelines. The area currently includes six local broadcast stations — WEVV-CBS44, WEHT-ABC25, WAZE-WB19, WNIN-PBS9, WTVW-FOX7 and 14WFIE-NBC.

But the sale appears to miss the mark where another aspect of the new FCC rule is concerned. Davenport said the rule clearly states that only one of the two stations owned by the same company can be among the market's top four in the latest ACNielsen ratings, Davenport said.

Both WTVW and WFIE currently are among the top four in the just-published May 2003 ratings, which reflect household-rating shares and total homes, according to Ken Schreiber of Kitch & Schreiber Inc.

In the latest ratings, WFIE ranks No. 1, WEHT ranks No. 2, WTVW ranks No. 3, WEVV ranks No. 4, WAZE ranks No. 5, and WNIN ranks No. 6.

Hipp called FCC's rules complex. But, he said, he believes the federal agency will approve the sale when it considers the structure of Liberty's financial commitment to GNS and Smith's ability to manage and operate a station.

Hipp said he believes Smith's record of accomplishments in financial matters, in management and in being able to plan for both the short term and the long term is also a positive for him in the FCC's thorough review of the proposed sale.

"We should know in the next couple of months," Hipp said.

Quorum Broadcasting Co., based in Franklin, Tenn., is the current owner of WTVW.

Although the FCC rules have been relaxed, it's still unclear exactly how Liberty's relationship with GNS will impact the operation of WFIE and WTVW.

There's been speculation in the local television industry that the local stations might consolidate their news and advertising efforts after the sale for economic reasons.

Such a consolidation, called a local marketing agreement, wouldn't require as many news reporters and sellers of air time to advertisers.

Hipp said, "That would be Neil's decision," but Smith said nothing has been decided in that regard.

Smith said the FCC rules allow Liberty to contract with GNS/WTVW for "up to 15 percent of the programming."

He said if any changes are made they likely would be on the administrative side rather than in the news and sales operations, however.

"I'm a firm believer in having separate sales staffs," said Smith. "It's hard for one station to try to sell (advertising for) another station. Everyone always thinks their product is the best and the other one is thrown in for free."

"The last thing I'd want to do is reduce the sales value of WTVW. In the long-term, I will want what will be best for the market of WTVW. I'm looking for any opportunity to improve the situation for GNS."

Smith described WFIE as "a super operation with a good history," and he said he doesn't want to interfere with its operations.

"They have just signed an agreement on an option," he said.

"With the way I'm setting up my company I'm trying to find any kind of a niche which I can do anything with. Something might work out between the companies down the road."

His most urgent task, he said

recently, is to finish formulating his plans so he can present them to the WTVW staff.

Smith said he believes WTVW is doing a super job. "Otherwise I wouldn't be interested in the facility," he said.

"The station's news team is its meat and potatoes."

Smith said there would be no reason for him to buy WTVW and destroy what it's done with its news product.

The proposed sales contract would require all WTVW employees to be basically terminated by Quorum on the day of the sale. They will be able to reapply for their jobs with GNS, he said.

"I'm going to try to keep as many people as possible," Smith said.

4.